WHEAT IN GERMANY IMPROVES OVER MAY

Heavy Northeast Winds Prevailing in June Lower the Temperature and Retard Crops.

Berlin, June 22.—Sunshine during the latter part of May improved crop conditions in Germany, which would have been even more favorable at the beginning of June had heavy northeast winds not prevailed, lowering the temperature. The present conditions are: Winter wheat rather scant, but improved over last month. There are very favorable reports regarding winter rye, which shows excellent growth. The summer crop, owing to the temperature, is not well developed. Only summer wheat has retained the condition of the previous month.

The report regarding rye, barley and oats shows their condition to have declined. The prospects of the potato crop are unfavorable. The tubers have developed irregularly and last month's rotting has made necessary much new planting.

EIGHT CONVICTS MADE A DASH FOR LIBERTY IN VAIN

Denver State Penitentiary the Scene of a Daring Attempt for Prison Delivery.

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.) Denver, June 22.—Eight convicts made a dash for liberty this morning from the state penitentiary. It resulted in the death of one and probable fatal wounding of two more and capture of the rest. His clothes were taken by the prisoners who rushed into the main corridor. Mrs. Cleghorn, wife of the warden, and Steward Keefe were made prisoners and dragged to the front gate which was blown open by dynamite. Dragging their prisoners with them they started for the hills. Armed guards rushed up but were afraid to fire owing to the presence of Mrs. Cleghorn and Keefe. Mrs. Cleghorn fainted and then the guards fired hitting three. The other five then surrendered.

WOMAN MOONSHINER FIGHTS WITH DEPUTIES

Black Glintless Snaps Revolver at Officers and Makes Desperate Effort to Escape.

Columbus, Ga., June 22.—While making a raid in Harris county United States Deputy Marshal Charles Williams and Deputy Sheriff Henderson, who was assisting him, narrowly escaped being murdered by Samantha Stokes, a negroess charged with illicit distilling.

The officers entered the woman's home and commanded her to surrender. She threw up her hands and they dropped their guns. She then turned to a drawer to get her bonnet, she told them, but from it she pulled a pistol, which she leveled at Williams and snapped twice. Only the failure of the cap to explode saved the officer's life.

Samantha is a glintless, and having begun a fight, she made it lively for the two officers before they were able to quell her. When they finally got her bound, Williams' face was badly scratched and Henderson's right arm, in which the furious woman had implanted her teeth, was severely lacerated.

While on the way here, though shackled, the woman jumped from the buggy and both officers were given all they could do to get her back into the conveyance. Samantha will be the first woman to be tried here on a "moonshine" charge. In addition to answering for illicit distilling, she will be charged with having made a murderous assault on United States officers.

CHINESE TREATY TO BE RATIFIED

Uncle Sam's Attitude Regarding the Kishineff Massacre May Have Placated Czar.

Washington, June 22.—News of importance to the commercial world is to be expected soon after Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador, shall have reported to St. Petersburg the latest phase of the Manchurian question as it is understood and urged by the state department.

Russia is expected to withdraw the pressure on China which is now preventing the ratification of the treaty between the United States and China, which was prepared by Secretary Hay, asking for two treaty ports in Manchuria, namely Mukden and Harbin.

It is generally admitted now that the state department has put itself in a position to get favorable action from Russia in view of the friendly attitude of this government towards Russia in the recent Kishineff massacre affair.

Count Cassini has scored a complete victory in that he has held the United States in the first statement made by Secretary Hay, that the United States had "no ground" for interference.

The diplomatic world will not now be surprised if China shall forthwith ratify the treaty for free ports.

DANES FLOCKING TOWARD AMERICA

Emigration Is More Than Doubled During the Month of May Last.

Copenhagen, June 22.—The emigration figures for May, 1903, show that more than twice as many persons emigrated from Denmark to America as during the same period last year, and the "American fever" shows no signs of abating. It is shown, however, that the money sent back by Scandinavian settlers in the United States offsets to a large degree the loss to the country caused by the emigration of so many of its best citizens. Figures recently published in Christiania show that during 1902 a total of 14,000,000 kroner was remitted in this way to Norway alone.

Artists' Brotherly Love.

MacDowell, the American composer, one evening after playing one of his pieces before an audience went into the greenroom and found it occupied by a brother artist, who sat with his back to him reading a newspaper. "Yes," answered Mr. MacDowell, meekly, "that's why I came down."

DEMAND IMPEACHMENT OF COUNTY OFFICIALS

Negroes Urge That State's Attorney and Sheriff Be Deposed for Belleville Lynching.

(Special By Scripps-Mellae.) Springfield, Ill., June 22.—John G. Jones, a former member of the general assembly, and L. B. Anderson, both of Chicago, came here as representatives of the Civic Rights and Justice league, composed of 600 colored residents of Illinois, to confer with Attorney General Hamlin and Acting Gov. Northcott regarding the recent lynching in St. Clair county.

Jones and Anderson will present a request that steps be taken to impeach State's Attorney Farmer and Sheriff Washburn of St. Clair county, who, they declare, have neglected to do their duty in the present case.

To impeach these officials would necessitate a special session of the legislature. It is contended by Jones and Anderson that the state's attorney and sheriff of St. Clair county have not given proper assistance in the efforts to identify the members of the mob that took W. T. Wyatt, a colored schoolteacher, from the Belleville jail and hanged him, afterward burning the body. They declare the Circuit judge has declared himself in favor of impeaching a special grand jury to investigate the matter, but that the state's attorney and sheriff have declined to enter into the project.

HORSE TRIED TO ESCAPE A TRAIN

Walked Out On The Trestle And Fell Through, Delaying a Train.

This afternoon about one o'clock a horse that had been browsing near one end of the St. Paul railroad bridge, above the dam, became frightened at an approaching passenger train and ambled out on the trestle work, and got stuck. He was endeavoring to get away from the "iron steed" that was coming nearer. When a ways out over the river, the sight of the water way below him, evidently made the nag nervous, anyway he became rattled, for soon his legs were badly tangled up in the ties. A freight train was kept waiting for half an hour while a big crowd, with the aid of ropes, helped the equine to terra firma. The horse was more scared than hurt.

ELDER ORDAINED SUNDAY MORNING

SPECIAL SERVICES HELD AT THE PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

ELDER LAMB WAS INSTALLED

Reverend Henderson Preached a Sermon That Was Very Pointed.

In connection with the services at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning James Lamb was ordained elder and reference was made by the pastor to the decease of Elder James Mout and his long and faithful service as an office bearer in the Presbyterian church. Reference was made to Mr. Lamb as being his successor. The special service of ordination then followed. To the slow sweet music of the organ the elders came to the altar and with Mr. Lamb standing in the front, the beautiful ordination service was performed by Rev. Henderson. At the close of which Mr. Lamb knelt and the prayer of vordination with the laying on of the elders' hands was offered.

Reinstallation Service.
Then followed the brief and impressive reinstallation service of Elders Mills and Sherer. The ordination service concluded, the pastor took as his text for a sermon fitting the occasion, Tim. 1, verse 315: "The Church of the living God."

The Sermon.
In part the sermon is as follows: The church is a divine institution. First because it is in accordance with the human mind, which disposes and morally forces man to unite himself with men of like thought and actions. It compels him to seek company where it is most congenial. The deeper and more profound these parallel experiences and aspirations, the sweeter and more binding the associations. Hence the world is full of clubs, fraternities, associations and combinations for almost every occupation and every aim of the human race. These are evidences of the fact that God ordained man should associate himself with his fellows. It is as natural as contagious drops of water to seek each other and form a flood or as natural as the instinct of the southward impulse of departing birds in the chill of autumn.

Deeper Tellings.
If these are sufficient to bind man together, in associations and combinations, how much deeper and stronger is the cord which draws man together in the worship of God and association in the church of God? The church of God is stamped with dignity. In ages past nations have come and gone; cities have been built and destroyed; but through it all, through the dark and bitter days of paganism, the church of God has steadily grown and prospered despite all adverse opposition. Then followed citations in history showing the providential care of the church against the onslaught of atheism, pantheism, spiritualism, materialism and paganism.

An Example.
In his reply to Prince Henry of Navarre who predicted the speedy overthrow and annihilation of Protestantism a noted Protestant showed himself no mean prophet in saying: "It is part of the church of God to receive blows but give none." Let me remind you, Majesty, that it is the anvil that wears out many hammers." All the blows that the church of God has received in the past has only increased its strength and brightened the surface.

Church of God.
The church is of God because it aims at purely divine ends. Lifting its members Godward, it tries by various means to assimilate the divine in the human. It is a mutual association of eternal life seekers. Some of the means used for this end are, the Sabbath with its holy quiet—a day which trusts itself into the busy working days, which calls to man to turn himself from the material aims to the spiritual and devote part of his life to the benefit of his soul. Then followed a reference to the two sacraments of baptism and the Lord's supper as means for the culture of the divine in the human. Each emphasizing the sacredness of human life.

The Church's Aim.
The church not only has an aim Godward within itself but it has a mission to the outside world calling as the voice of God pointing men upward. Its influence in this regard can scarcely be exaggerated. Henry Ward Beecher expressed this influence well when he said, "It is a joy to me to know that the Christians within the communion of this church are not all the Christians to be found in the congregation. We are richer than we appear to be. Here are growing pear trees, apple trees, cherry trees and shrubs and blossoming vines and flowers of every hue and odor. But I am glad to know that some seeds have blown over the wall and that fruit trees and flowers most pleasant to the eye are springing up there also. And though I wish they were within the enclosure where the wild beasts out of the woods could not waste them, yet I love them and am glad to see them growing there."

"Would that the work of the church, this church in particular were increased, as it relates to those without its fold. This is the chief mission of the church of the living God, who would have all men gathered within the sacred enclosure of the sanctuary."

Then followed an urgent appeal for enthusiastic, outspoken, consecrated, loyalty to the church of their choice.

HOW THE POPE SPENDS HIS DAY

Facts of Especial Interest at the Present Time, to Many Readers.

Owing to the present interest manifested in the condition of the Pope it will be interesting to many to read how His Holiness spends his days. The following account is taken from a special letter written for the Chicago Daily News by a correspondent.

While cardinals, diplomats, and journalists are busy speculating what the next conclave will do and who will be the next pope, Leo lives on. He is up every morning at 7—sometimes at 6 when there is a press of business—and after a brief toilet, leaves his bedroom for the adjoining oratory, where chamberlains dress him for mass, a service which lasts about half an hour. Then comes a slight refreshment—a cup of coffee and a roll—and the plucky nonagenarian is ready for his day's work. He enters his private library, littered with embryo encyclicals and half finished latin poems, and sits at his desk, on which are a big bronze crucifix, a glass vase of choice snuff, his breviary and an edition of Horace. The secretaries come in with briefs to be signed, reports to be considered and drafts to be corrected.

Then a few visitors are admitted, privileged to private audience. Dr. Lippin is generally one of this company, always welcome, but rarely obeyed when he prescribes to his august patient more rest and less work. At 9 Mr. Angeli, Leo's private secretary, brings the news of the day and press clippings, ginned on paste board, docketed and indexed for future reference. The Osservatore Romano, the official organ of the Vatican, is read throughout, while His Holiness sips a cup of broth and half a glassful of Burgundy.

Hears Rampolla in Secret.
Cardinal Rampolla is announced at 10. The "cardinal," as the papal secretary of the state is called "tout court" as if the other members of the sacred college were mere manikins, which they substantially are in these latter days of Leo's pontificate—the "cardinal" in flowing red silk, sweeps through the magnificent suite of antechambers, followed by secretaries with his portfolios. He blandly smiles to the Swiss guards who present arms and to the Vatican prelates who reverently bow. He remains closeted with the pontiff for an hour at least in strictest secrecy, beyond the ken of journalism.

When the discussion of state affairs does not absorb the whole morning other cardinals are admitted to audience. Respegli, the cardinal vicar; Gotti, the perfect of the propaganda; the two Vannetti, leaders of the opposition in the sacred college, —a bland, courteous opposition which may become inconveniently outspoken in the case of a conclave; the liberal Agliardi, the conservative Sallardi and the millionaire cardinal Casati.

When the clock of St. Peter's strikes noon, the pope proceeds in state to the throneroom to meet and bless pilgrims, people of note or of means, sometimes princes, generally members of dispossessed reigning families. The pope, in good humor, which he generally is, if in good health, shines brightly in these interviews. His great learning, his keen wit, a retentive memory of all the incidents of his long life and wonderful vitality charm his visitors and often provoke a generous contribution to the Peter's fund, which is the main and never failing resource of the papal treasury.

After the audience, the day's work is mostly done, and the pope goes to his frugal dinner. Like all his predecessors, he sits alone at the table no one, gentle or simple, has ever joined the vicar of Christ in his meals. Leo submits good humoredly to this precedent, not to shock the Vatican mind, but often invites a favorite prelate to a friendly chat while he is dining. A short siesta in an easy chair follows, and then, weather permitting, a drive in the gardens, during which he is busy with his breviary, reading the "hours" a comprehensive term for matins and vespers.

On his return he goes to his desk. If no visitors drop in—nephews, cardinals heads of religious orders and sometimes Rampolla with more papers and the latest news from the nuncios and apostolic delegates. Late in the evening he retires to the oratory for prayer and meditation until 10 o'clock, when he partakes of a slight supper and goes to bed, to sleep, if possible; otherwise, to compose latin verses.

RATE WAR IS MOST SERIOUS

Thought That the Western Passenger Association Will Fall Through.

General opinion among western railroad men is that the Western Passenger association, with all its bureaus is on the verge of collapse. Its downfall is likely to be accompanied by a widespread rate war. Indications have pointed in this direction for some time, but the result of Saturday's meetings of the executive committee of the association and the Chicago-St. Paul lines has brought the expected end nearer and has made dissolution almost inevitable.

No hope is entertained that the recommendation of the executive committee to substitute a 2,000 mile book good on trains for the credential form of interchangeable mileage now in use, will ever be adopted. In addition to this trouble, an indication that the western passenger war will spread to territory beyond the Missouri river, was the announcement today that a proposal had been submitted to the lines in the western Passenger association providing that tickets be sold at the rate of 2 cents per mile instead of 2½, between Illinois and Missouri points and Kansas City. This move is regarded as ominous, for it is almost certain that when the 2 cent fare is voted down the road proposing it will put the rate under the individual action of the western agreement.

Another cheap rate, which, in the unsettled condition of tariffs is of importance, has been announced from Chicago and Illinois territory to Minneapolis on account of the Swedish slingers meeting in July. The rate is one fare for the round trip for individual passengers.

So far, as the Chicago-St. Paul rate situation is concerned, the refusal of the Wisconsin Central to yield unconditionally to the pressure brought to bear on it to withdraw the 33 rate, makes an all around rate war almost certain. The Milwaukee will make a reduction in the rates through the Missouri river gateways on absolute necessity, and once a general process of reductions begins nobody will undertake to say where it will end.

NEWS FROM THE LEAF DEALERS

LATE TOBACCO NEWS TOUCHING ON GENERAL CONDITIONS.

GERMAN MARKET FALLING OFF

Less Sale for Cheaper Grades, Because Brazilian Tobacco Is Superseding American.

It is reported by leaf tobacco handlers that the loss of German trade has somewhat tended to lessen the ease of selling their lower grades of tobacco. The German dealers are purchasing from Brazil, so letters received by dealers in this city state, and the result is that shipments of leaf to German markets has greatly decreased during the past year. W. T. Decker shipped something over one hundred cases to Hamburg in February, but few other sales have been reported.

Among retail tobacco dealers, the summer slump is beginning to set in. The exodus to the summer resorts is largely responsible for this. The cool weather has been a saving feature. But for that the summer resorters would have been in hot weather quarters two weeks ago and this has tended to lengthen the season somewhat.

Wisconsin Conditions.
In this state better weather is prevailing and transplanting is now in full swing. Plants are plentiful and the recent rain has put the ground in fine condition. The growers are about a week ahead of their average season in their farm work.

No activity is shown in the leaf markets. Some goods remain in the first hands but the amount is smaller than usual, and dealers find little encouragement in trying to lift them. Trade in old leaf is also dull. The shipments from Edgerton last week for all points was 300 cases, and from Janesville even less. The packings of the past winter are being overhauled. Several instances of black rot have been reported.

New England.
In New England the growth of young plants have been much retarded by the cool weather as well as by the drought. Some slight damage was done by frost. The work of transplanting is also put back by the drought. The rains that prevailed the first of the week in most parts of the country did not touch this territory, and the land is very dry. In some places no rain has fallen for six weeks. The tobacco acreage will be smaller than was at first supposed. It is doubtful if it will be any larger than that of the past year. Sales are infrequent and prices poor.

The rain which has been so long needed is coming to Lancaster Pa., in small doses. The lush condition of the previous week has been supplemented by a good shower during the present one, and although it was not half as much as was needed, it freshened up things wonderfully and the tobacco growers are regaining confidence once more. The skies are threatening still and more may come.

State Experiments

State agricultural college authorities have decided to operate two experimental tobacco stations in Lancaster this season under the superintendence of Mr. M. L. Grider, who has managed all the work done in this line for the state. The plants will both be conducted under cover and within a few miles of each other. The agricultural department at Washington has given us the cold shoulder, said one correspondent, and in addition has told us we can't grow fine tobacco, even under cover, although we demonstrated last year we could produce an article every whit as good as grown in Connecticut. We shall do quite as well by going it alone as by being hampered by experts who understand neither our soil nor our climate.

Fires played an important part in the history of the tobacco trade in Philadelphia for the past seven days. It would, perhaps, be more correct to say that water played an important part in the weekly news of the trade for the tobacco firms concerned in the news suffered more from water than from fire.

In the Factories.
The manufacturers of seed, Havana and clear Havana cigars find nothing to complain of in regard to the business conditions in New York. It is true that here and there factories may be discovered which seem to be afflicted with inertia, but really no factory is actually dull and the output of all is decidedly ahead of previous years' products at this season.

Very few sales are noted at this time of the year in the Connecticut Valley market. The growers have their hands full in getting the plants well set, and are anxious to know whether the crop will grow or not. Judging from long experience, if the plants are of good size and well set, they have a wonderful strong hold upon life, and will thrive when it seems almost impossible for them to retain their hold upon life or to grow. The cool weather is an advantage, and this week the air has been so smoky that it serves as a shade for the plants.

Canadians Are Hedging.

A Canadian correspondent makes some candid admissions concerning the Alaskan boundary in the London Economist. After remarking that the general belief in Canada is that the Americans will win, with the help of the British commissioner, he adds: "A weak feature of our case is that it has the appearance of an afterthought. For a long time after the Anglo-Russian treaty of 1825, the region where the dispute has arisen, was administered, so far as it was administered at all, by two fur companies—The Hudson Bay company and the Russian American company, the former paying a yearly rent to the latter for such territory as the treaty had awarded to Russia. Russia, on her maps, copied by British cartographers, claimed what is now claimed by the United States, who stepped into her shoes in 1867, Yukon river and Dawson." and England had nothing to say to the contrary. The first official connection Canada had with the matter was in 1871, when British Columbia entered the confederation. While we asked more than once for the limitation of the boundary, we did not seriously insist that the United States was claiming too much until 1887 or thereabouts. Indeed, we scarcely regarded our case as worth the candle until after the discovery of gold on the Yukon seven or eight years ago, when, of course, we desired to control the routes running north from the Lynn canal to the coast. The correspondent significantly observes that "in boundary disputes a contra case of the strongest possible sort is required in order to dispossess the nation actually exercising sovereignty." Of course, no such case can be made out by Canada.

Inevitable Mistakes.

No one that has not had experience in poultry raising should invest heavily in that business. The only safe way is to start small and increase the flock as rapidly as experience increases. The novice generally starts in with the firm resolve to succeed from the start. Frequently he gets all the information he can from books and from practical poultrymen, and he vainly imagines that the information so acquired will save him from mistakes. But the mistakes are made just the same, though they are doubtless fewer on account of what has been gleaned from the experiences of others. People must have experience by themselves to really fit them to cope with the numerous situations they must face. Let the novice set it down as a certainty that he will make mistakes of a most serious nature, and that as a result of such mistakes great losses will result. In some cases these losses will be greater than the profits for the entire year in which they occur. We tell the novice of this before they occur, so that he may not be entirely discouraged and give up the effort when they do occur. Even people that have been brought up on farms encounter these discouraging experiences when they try to handle fowls in considerable numbers. The ones that have had a little experience in raising poultry are the ones most likely to invest considerable sums in an equipment before they are really competent to manage such equipment. Because they have had some experience they imagine themselves to be experts. Most of the failures are due to inexperience, but the people that have failed are not usually willing to admit this even to themselves. Even the farm boy that has fed chickens and gathered eggs since childhood will do well to go a little slow when he enters the ranks of professional chicken raisers, for it hurts less to lose 50 per cent of a flock of a hundred than it does to lose a like proportion of a thousand fowls.

Housing Ducks.

From the Farmers' Review: We hear a great deal these days about poultry in general. The Pekin duck has been well discussed in poultry and farm papers, and yet no two writers agree to the care of ducks. Perhaps some of the readers of this paper will be interested in how we house our 500 breeders in winter and house our ducklings to marketable age. Our duck houses are built single wall 4 feet high in front, 7 feet in back, with tar paper roof. Windows are in the roof, to correspond with pens inside. We mate 20 ducks to a pen 10x10—16 females, 4 males. From June to October our ducks sleep out of doors, rain or shine. Of course they must have shade in hot weather. Our ducklings are kept in brooders till 3 weeks of age in a special duck brooder house, with window every 4 feet on side. Ducks for market are sold at 10 weeks old; those kept for breeders are not turned out from the brooder house for the lake of water until 16 weeks old. They must then have shade and a light protection from the heavy rains. A duck brooder house should be built warm, while a house for breeding ducks need not be so, as a duck has a very heavy covering of feathers. The main thing is that they have straw to keep their feet warm. During the laying season our ducks are not let out of houses until 8 a. m.; by this time all are through laying.—Clement & Fike, Lake County, Illinois.

A New Butterline Color.

The makers of butterline have been looking far and near for some ingredient that will color oleomargarine and yet form a very considerable proportion of the butterline made. The internal revenue officers have hitherto decided against every coloring ingredient found on the ground that so small a percentage was used that it was evident that it was not intended as a substantial part of the compound, but was added for its coloring effects only. Had the coloring matter composed say 10 per cent of the bulk of the oleomargarine and possessed food value the internal revenue officers might have ruled that it was a legitimate part of the compound. Now, however, a Chicago savant thinks he has found a solution of the coloring problem in eggs. He has therefore taken out a patent on what he considers the key to the oleomargarine situation. In his application for papers patent he claims his butterline is to consist of 30 per cent fresh eggs, 20 per cent tallow, and 50 per cent lard. The tallow and the lard are to be melted and thus mixed. The eggs are to be beaten for fifteen minutes and then mixed with the other ingredients, after which the mixture is to be boiled from 15 minutes to half an hour, when it is cooled off and worked. How the eggs will suit the consumers of oleo is yet to be found out.

It pays to have a good dairy barn. Money is well invested in such an improvement. We have known farmers that were well-to-do and yet all their lives never owned a decent barn for the housing of their dairy cows. Barns dark in summer and cold in winter are not places in which the cows can be comfortable or their keepers happy while they are working around them.

The Boy Breaker.
"I'm 12 years old, goin' on 13," said the boy to the boss of the breaker. He didn't look more than ten, and he was only nine, but the law said he must be 12 to get a job. He was one of a multitude of the 16,000 youngsters of the mines, who, because miners' families are large and their pay comparatively small, start in the breaker before many boys have passed their primary schooling. From the time he enters the breaker there is a rule of progress that is almost always followed. Once a miner and twice a breaker-boy, the upward growth of boy to man, breaker-boy to miner, the descent from manhood to old age, from miner to breaker-boy; that is the rule. So the nine-year-old boy who is "12, goin' on 13," starts in the breaker.—World's Work.

BOOTS AND SHOES

Exports of boots and shoes in the fiscal year about to end seem likely to exceed those of any preceding year both in quantity and value. In 1880 the number of pairs of boots and shoes exported was 378,274; in 1890 the number had only increased to 537,108 pairs; by 1900 the number had grown to 3,016,720 pairs; and in 1902 the total was 3,966,766 pairs; and in the fiscal year about to end the total will pass the four million line. The total value of boots and shoes exported has grown from a little over a half million dollars in 1893 to over six millions in 1903. In 1893 the total value of boots and shoes exported was $590,754; by 1895 it had practically doubled, being in that year, 1,010,228; by 1899 it had doubled again being in that year $2,711,385. Within two years the total had again doubled, being in 1901, $5,526,290, and in the fiscal year 1903, which ends ten days hence, the total value of boots and shoes exported will be between six and seven million dollars.

Of the six million dollars worth of boots and shoes exported in 1902 two million dollars worth went to the United Kingdom, practically a million dollars' worth to British Australasia, over a half million dollars' worth to Mexico, a half million dollars' worth to Cuba, and about an equal sum to Canada. The increase in shipments from the United States to the United Kingdom has been very rapid during the decade, the total value in 1892 being but $2,169, and in 1902, $2,013,890. The number of pairs sent to the United Kingdom from the United States was, in 1892, 1,507, and in 1902 1,035,396; while to British Australasia the number of pairs sent in 1892 was 8,298, and in 1902, 550,469; to Germany in 1892, 812, and in 1902, 122,689. The total number of pairs of boots and shoes sent abroad from the United States in 1902 was 3,966,766 and of this number two thirds went to British territory, distributed as follows: United Kingdom, 1,035,396 pairs; Quebec, Ontario, etc., 269,164 pairs; British West Indies, 289,445 pairs; British Australasia, 550,469 pairs; British Africa, 168,097 pairs; Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, etc., 32,980 pairs; British Columbia, 25,959 pairs; Newfoundland and Labrador, 13,194 pairs; Bermuda, 54,678 pairs; British Honduras, 49,021 pairs; British Guiana, 31,451 pairs, and British East Indies, 12,029 pairs, making a total of 2,530,983 pairs sent to British territory out of an aggregate exportation of 3,966,766 pairs.

EXPORTATION

Exportation of manufactures in April was larger than in any preceding month in the history of our export trade, excepting the months of March and May, 1900. The total value of manufactures exported in April 1903 was in round numbers, 40 million dollars, against 26 million in April, 1893; 21 million in April 1896; 16 millions in April 1895, and 14 millions in April, 1893. Thus, comparing April 1903 with April 1893, the total is nearly three times as great. On only two occasions in the entire history of our export trade have the exports of manufactures during a single month reached as high a figure as that of April, 1903. The two months which show a larger total than April of this year are March and May, 1900. In March, 1900, the total exports of manufactures were $41,767,139; in May, 1900, $40,460,367; while in April of this year the total was $39,846,569. An examination of the details of the exports of these two months, which, exceeded April of this year shows that the higher figures of those two months are due almost exclusively to the fact that iron and steel exports on those occasions were much larger than at present. The total value of iron and steel exported in March 1900 was $11,858,387, and in May of that year, $12,026,681; while in April of the present year the total exports of iron and steel was $9,929,233.

SUNDAY SERMON BY REV. DENISON

THE CONGREGATIONAL MINISTER
GIVES ABLE ADDRESS

AT THE EVENING SERVICE

Takes as His Topic the Title "Curiosity," and Builds His Address from That.

The Reverend H. C. Denison, of the Congregational church took "Curiosity" for the subject of his sermon at the Sunday evening service. Curiosity in man's life, and his text was from the nineteenth chapter of the Gospel of St. Luke. The speaker first showed that the word curiosity is associated with much that is disagreeable. A curious person is often thought of as a person who is prying into things that are not his business. A person may be curious in a way that is not helpful, when he prys, for instance, in a gossiping way into the affairs of others, and this was shown not to be the best or original meaning of the word.

It was further shown that the different degrees of intelligence between a human being and animals of a lower order were exhibited by the amount of curiosity shown. Mr. Denison, in illustrating this fact, spoke of a baby's eyes, how they were a sign of intelligence and vast power. The wonder that is expressed in them is the sign of intelligence. Then the child begins to ask questions, show curiosity, that is the evidence of the human soul in the child. Then the preacher mentioned how the millions of people in the old world were content with things as they were, but how it was the curious man who wondered what was beyond the horizon, and who, in trying to find out, discovered America, and gave us a new continent. Then of the millions of men who have seen steam rising from the tea-kettle and never thought of the cause and how it was the curious man who discovered the value of the vapor and what it could be made to do. The pastor told how it was the curious man who had discovered how to preserve and keep fresh articles of food. How, in fact, all the discoveries that help towards making life comfortable were found out by people who were curious, and not always content with things as they were. Mr. Denison related that at one time a professor in an address before a graduating class, had said that the students should almost sacred through so much sacrifice, and had accomplished so much in making conditions in the world better.

There is also curiosity in religion and the pastor quoted from Scripture, the well known verse, "Unless ye become as little children, ye can not enter the kingdom of God." One meaning that is applied to this verse that we must, to understand the Christian life, be possessed of curiosity. This was illustrated by telling of the time when Christ was passing through the streets of Jericho, how the vain and frivolous people allowed him to go by unnoticed, but how Zaccheus, who was curious, climbed a tree in order to see Christ and afterwards followed him, became a disciple and changed his whole life. The whole organization of the church, it was further shown was not to make people believe certain creeds and doctrines, but to rouse and to awaken their curiosity as to what the meaning of it all is. In closing, the speaker said, "To the curious man, there opens a larger life."

GONE TO THEIR REWARD

Mrs. Mary Etta Hall.
Mrs. Mary Etta Hall died between ten and eleven o'clock Sunday evening, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. F. C. Hutson, of 6 Gore street. The immediate cause of her death is thought to be heart failure and old age, but she has been in fairly good health up to yesterday. Deceased was 74 years of age and settled in Albion, Dane county, with her husband, in 1848 and lived there until about three years ago. Since that time she has lived with her daughter in Janesville.

Mrs. Hall was highly thought of by all who knew her and leaves a large circle of friends. One daughter, Mrs. F. C. Hutson, of Janesville, a son now living in Iowa and a brother in Beloit are left. Interment will be in the Albion cemetery. The funeral will be held at 8:30 o'clock from Mrs. Hutson's home tomorrow morning, the Reverend L. C. Randolph officiating. The pallbearers will be F. E. Carpenter, Edward Edgington, A. W. Hall and Charles Stevens. The remains will be carried overland to Albion and there will be a short service at the grave, at which the Reverend Mr. Babcock of Albion will officiate. Music will be furnished by a quartette of singers from Milton.

F. A. Bennett.
The funeral of Mr. F. A. Bennett was held from his home this afternoon at three o'clock. Janesville Lodge, No. 55, conducted the funeral, J. W. Clark having charge of the ceremonies, the G. A. R. Post and Janesville Commandery, No. 2, acting as escorts. The pallbearers were T. E. Cook, S. Hotelling, E. V. Evans, G. H. Colling, John Peters, and G. H. Erridge. The Reverend Bosworth of Beloit conducted the service and there was singing by a quartette from Milton. Interment was in Oak Hill cemetery.

MAJ. JAMES POND DIED ON SUNDAY

He Set Type on The Gazette Long Before the Civil War.

Many an old time Janesville citizen remembers Major Pond. He was here in the anti-bellum days and set his best in the Gazette office with the stick of the old time types of that day. On Saturday last the Gazette announced that he was in a very serious condition owing to the amputation of his leg. Today the word comes that he died at his home in New Jersey as a result of the shock sustained. There was probably no one man connected with the lecture world that was as well known as Major Pond.

Major Pond was born at Cuba, N. Y., in 1835, and his parents, who were extremely poor, moved to Wisconsin when he was quite young. He worked about the home place until he was 13 years old, when he says his father thrashed him "for telling a lie which was not a lie," and he ran away to Fond du Lac, which impressed him as a grand city, because boys of his own age there wore shoes every day and there were board sidewalks. His first job was as a devil in the office of the Fountain City Herald, at a salary of $25 a year and his keep. From Fond du Lac he went to Oshkosh, Madison, Janesville, and finally drifted to Kansas, where he became one of the publishers of the Herald of Freedom. Then he enlisted and served through the John Brown war, and later the civil war, rising in rank to major.

After a stay in St. Louis he drifted to Salt Lake City and went to work on the Tribune there. While there Ann Eliza Young, the nineteenth wife of Brigham Young, was converted by a Methodist minister, and it was decided to send her to Washington to plead the cause of the Gentiles of Utah.

Mr. Pond became interested in the arrangement of the trip and finally took charge of it. On the way to Washington he arranged several profitable lectures for Mrs. Young, and thus began his career as a manager. He never forgot his newspaper training, and was one of the most skillful advertisers in the business. In the course of time he bought out the Ridpath Lyceum bureau in Boston and went into the managing business in earnest. From that time on his career was a success, although he did undertake several ventures which were not entirely profitable.

Major Pond, in his day managed the lecture tours of nearly all the noted public speakers and scores of concert singers and performers.

BIG SPEAKERS FOR DELAVAN

ASSEMBLY AT LAKE WILL HAVE GIFTED PEOPLE.

THE PROGRAM IS MADE OUT

Dr. F. D. Power, President McKinley's Former Pastor, Is To Lecture.

No falling off is noticeable in the list of speakers announced for the Delavan Lake assembly.

The throngs who visit the pretty camping and assembly grounds summerly will be entertained by lecturers and platform speakers of national renown. The assembly begins on Wednesday, July 29th, and comes to a close on Sunday, August 9th, the sessions continuing twelve days.

Noted Speaker. Mrs. Frances F. Herbert will again be present to take prominent part in the primary work. Col. John Sobieski, a Pole who was for a time in the Minnesota legislature, will talk upon the Polish republic. Pres. McKinley's old pastor, Dr. F. D. Power of Washington, D. C., will deliver his lecture upon the late president. Dr. Sylvester Burnham will again have charge of the Normal Bible class. Prof. R. B. George will direct the chorus class, Miss Emily F. Wheeler will lecture on art and beauty. Mrs. A. E. Shipley will have charge of two Chautauqua departments, literary and round table.

Montana Flowers will appear in "The Merchant of Venice" and the "Little Minister." J. Rosani, the juggler, will be present.

Splendid Music. Music will be furnished by the Mendelssohn quartette, Mrs. Luella Clark Emery, Miss Marguerite Smith, the American Lady quartette, Busse and Kopp's ideal orchestra, and Mame O. Reitsch.

Lectures will be delivered by Rev. Father Vaughan, A. R. Tarr, Dr. H. W. Sears, Nat. M. Bingham, Dana C. Johnson, Thomas E. Green, Mrs. Florence D. Richards, Senator Deliver of Iowa, and the Revs. G. E. Gowdy and Robert S. MacArthur.

Hamilton's projectoscope will be seen frequently.

THE EVENTS OF THE DAY

Paint Myers House: Painters this morning began upon the task of brightening the exterior of the Myers house. The color chosen for the paint is a vivid orange which, it is safe to say, will alter the building almost beyond recognition.

Children's Day Observed: Janesville speakers took a prominent part in the Children's day observance at three of the mission Sunday schools of the county. Rock River, Newville, and Indian Ford observed the day. Revs. Vaughan and Henderson and J. T. Wright of this city assisted in the services.

Sewer Action Delayed: Because of the number of new sidewalks which the council has recently ordered built the city engineer has had enough time to draft the plans and other drawings which were ordered as a preliminary step toward building a sewer system. It is not probable that the matter will be brought to a head before fall.

Long Council Proceedings: With each meeting of the common council the space required to record the proceedings is greater. The minutes of the last meeting required twenty-eight pages in the record. This is record length for this year. One meeting last year, when street improvements were at issue, required thirty pages for the record. A few years ago five or six pages were more than adequate.

Mrs. Lyman Morse has been confined to her bed for some days by a severe cold.

The best 25c coffee on earth. W. W. Nash.

Aldermen Stand Good Chance of Being Home Early Tonight—Little Business.

What will be done at the meeting of the common council this evening is a subject for conjecture. Save for the awarding of the contract for the sidewalk and curbing in front of the Carnegie library there is little if any hold-over business. The city clerk has very few reports and petitions to present to the aldermen.

OFFICE GOES TO CON. J. MURPHY

APPOINTED SECOND ASSISTANT ENGINEER.

HAD LONG TERM OF SERVICE

Was the First Full Paid Fireman in the City, and Had Longest Active Period of Service.

Chief Klein has appointed C. J. Murphy second assistant chief engineer. Notices to that effect are posted in the fire stations.

This appointment is conferred upon the oldest active member of the fire department and the first fireman to draw a salary from the city. As a fire fighter the new second assistant chief has few equals in the department.

C. J. Murphy's record dates from 1892 when he joined the department. At that time he drove the west side steamer team. The next year found him in a similar position on the east side, where he remained for four years.

In 1898 the city water works were installed and the department placed on a paid basis. Mr. Murphy was the first to be placed on the paid list, and acted as driver of the east side hose team.

His resignation was tendered in 1892 when he took up street sprinkling, but he was back in the department next year as call man and assistant driver of the fire patrol, and he still holds these positions.

Such a wine cookie as they make cannot be baked at home as only the recipe is known to themselves. Pot of beans, baked ham, raised biscuit, potato chips, banana tarts, angel and devil food cake, jelly roll, lady fingers, almond macaroons are all specialties that cannot be excelled either at home or abroad.

GOULD'S NEPHEW KILLS HIMSELF

USES REVOLVER TO END LIFE

Deceased Was Formerly Considered One of the Wealthy Men of St. Louis—Friends Endeavor to Cover Up Facts in the Case.

St. Louis, Mo., June 22.—Sandford Northrop, a nephew of Jay Gould, and formerly considered one of the wealthy men of St. Louis, committed suicide at the home of a friend, Claude Kennerly, 3731 Delmar avenue. At least that is the version of the tragedy so far as information has been given to the police and to newspaper men.

According to a member of the Kennerly household Northrop was alone in the room which he has occupied since giving up his house on Laclede avenue several weeks ago, and shot himself in the temple with a revolver. When members of the family burst open the door Northrop was dying and before medical aid could be summoned he was dead. Mrs. Northrop and an 8-year-old daughter are in Camden, N. J., where Northrop will be buried.

Meets Business Reverses.

Until a few weeks ago Mr. Northrop was secretary and general manager of the American Refrigerator Transit Company, of which his brother, Reid Northrop, was president. Affairs of the concern got into bad shape and it is asserted that the Northrops lost the control of the company which they previously had possessed. At all events they resigned and Reid Northrop went to London, where he still is engaged in some financial transactions. Sandford Northrop apparently was deeply affected by the business reverses and to this alone his friends attribute his suicide.

Entertained Arctic Explorer.

His domestic and social relations so far as known have been entirely satisfactory. He was interested in many affairs outside the routine of business and on the occasion of the visits here of Evelyn B. Baldwin, the arctic explorer, entertained the latter at his house and gave him much valuable assistance in preparing for his journey into the north.

No one was admitted to the Kennerly home and those immediately connected with the family, with one exception, absolutely declined to give any information. The exception answered with reluctance and many questions declined to answer at all.

Was Uncle's Favorite.

Reid Northrop is the only immediate relative living here. Howard Northrop of Chicago, another brother, was notified. He sent a message in reply, saying he would be in St. Louis in time to accompany the body to Philadelphia. William Northrop of Richmond, Va., also a brother, received a message concerning the death.

Sandford Northrop was a member of the "Coun." Noonday. Field and St. Louis Fair Crouches club. Besides several smaller social organizations. He had a host of friends. He was a favorite of his uncle, Jay Gould, and he had always been on terms of the closest intimacy with the present generation of the Gould family.

It is said McCrow had been drinking and was seeking revenge for dismissal some time ago. No action has been taken by the sheriff, although Braun says he is willing to give himself up at once.

ALABAMA PRESS HIDES PEONAGE

JUDGE'S OPINION IS IGNORED

Editors of State Appear to Fear Public Sentiment, Which Favors Maintenance of the Leasing System as Applied to Negro Convicts.

Montgomery, Ala., June 22.—The opinion which United States District Judge Thomas Goode Jones rendered to the federal grand jury for the enlightenment of the jury in connection with its investigation of peonage is a remarkable judicial pronouncement. It has not been accorded the publicity in Alabama which it deserves. One Montgomery newspaper published the full text of the opinion. The press of the state generally, however, dismissed it with the publication of a few excerpts selected with little intelligence.

Press is Indifferent.

The indifference of the press is hard to understand in view of the fact that Judge Jones declares as criminal a system that has been fostered until it has grown to enormous proportions, and which certain elements in the state regard as one of the fundamentals of their prosperity. He says without equivocation that the contract labor law and the equally infamous statute which renders it a felony for a farm tenant or renter to throw up his lease are not only unconstitutional, but that they are conducive to the creation of peonage.

Without those laws to give a color of legality to the slave deals which are being consummated in various sections of the state almost daily, there could be no peonage.

Judge is Antagonistic.

Judge Jones possesses the advantage, as a native of Alabama, of understanding the motives underlying the passage of the infamous laws. Many years ago, as speaker of the house of representatives in Alabama, he was instrumental in defeating a bill which was a counterpart of the present law. He believed then that it was unconstitutional, and perhaps he believed also that the purpose of it was to re-establish slavery in the guise of peonage. On a later occasion, when a similar bill became the principal issue of a gubernatorial campaign, Judge Jones took the stump against it and was nominated for governor. Again was its enactment into law prevented.

But the advocates of the measure were persistent and in time were successful in having it incorporated among the revised statutes of Alabama. Since that happened Alabama has been cursed by a form of slavery more repugnant in most of its aspects than the slavery which was abolished by the emancipation proclamation of President Lincoln.

Expect Legislature to Act.

The law-abiding citizens of the State recognize that Judge Jones has rendered Alabama a conspicuous service in pointing out the constitutional defects of the laws under which peonage has been practiced and are preparing to make his words the slogan of a campaign for their repeal. The legislature will meet in September. It will be urged to pass a regular without loss of time and also to enact laws which will bring within the jurisdiction of the State courts of Alabama criminals of the type who are now under indictment before the federal court for fostering peonage. The legislature will undoubtedly act with promptness, for by so doing it can save hundreds of land owners from prosecution by the federal authorities.

Situation is Serious.

There can be no reasonable doubt that every planter and employer who has accepted the services of renters and laborers as penalties for violation of leases and contracts is guilty of forcing the persons concerned into involuntary servitude. Neither is there any doubt that they are amenable to the federal law and liable to immediate arrest and conviction.

The situation is very serious. The dockets of justices of the peace throughout the State could disclose to the federal authorities the extent to which the peonage statute has been violated. Every planter and employer who has taken advantage of the State laws is aware of this fact and fearful that, under Judge Jones' interpretation of those acts, he may be called to account.

Many May Be Indicted.

Certainly the grand jury, which is still in session in Montgomery and may not adjourn until September, has been given the widest possible latitude in dealing with offenders. With such assistance from Chief Wilkie's secret service as that official is capable of rendering, the jury can indict hundreds and perhaps thousands of farm owners who believed that they were protected by the laws of Alabama. Prompt repeal of the statutes would force abrogation of all existing contracts, free the peons and perhaps limit the future efforts of the federal authorities to the detection of barbarous slave drivers of the type already under indictment.

Of Interest to Dairymen.

From Farmers' Review: I gather from the last United States census reports (1900) the following of interest to dairymen: The number of farms in Illinois, 261,151; the number of farms in Illinois reporting dairy cattle, 236,625; the number of cows reported in Illinois, 1,097,661; the value of their products, $23,638,419, or about twenty-nine dollars per cow. The Illinois cows average only 451 gallons of milk, or 3,550 pounds, for each cow per year. I find the ideal cow gives 2,751 pounds of milk in thirty days.

I find Kansas cows average less than twenty dollars per cow; also Nebraska and South Dakota.

Iowa has 1,425,618 cows; products, $27,516,870; average $19.30 per cow. Minnesota has 752,632 cows; products, $16,623,460; average, $22.00 per cow.

Vermont has 270,191 cows; products, $9,321,389; average, $34.00 per cow. New York has 1,591,605 cows; products, $55,474,155; average, $37.00 per cow.

New Hampshire has 115,036 cows, products, $5,691,242; average, $55.00 per cow.

I find that in our state the three principal counties are McHenry, with 2,538 farms, having 52,593 cows, valued at $2,243,974, an average of $13 per cow; Cook, with 4,491 farms, on which are 35,939 cows valued at $1,655,252, an average of $41 per cow; and Kane, with 2,163 farms, on which are 42,714 cows valued at $2,177,289, an average of $50 per cow. It is generally accepted that it costs $39 and over to breed a cow a year. In Mr. Glover's work of testing and keeping records for one year of over three hundred cows, he finds the extreme to be: One cow charged $2.07 to make 100 pounds of milk, or 52 cents for one pound of butter fat. The best cow 29 cents for 100 pounds of milk, or 6 to 10 cents per pound of butter fat, and the H. B. Gurley herd averaged a net profit of twenty-six dollars per head over and above the cost of feed.

Dairymen! Study these figures, then weed out the poor unprofitable cows and take better care of and feed a more balanced ration to those that pay a profit.—Joseph Newman, President Illinois Dairymen's Association.

Care of Milk and Cream.

From Farmers' Review: I beg the privilege of saying a few words regarding what H. L. Wright said in the Review of March 4th, 1903, page 164, on "Care of Milk and Cream." I would suggest that before setting the milk in tanks of cold water or as soon as possible after drawn from cow, that it be run over a good cooler and aerator, which is a machine having cold water circulating through it, as the milk runs down over the outside, which allows the gases and bad odors that may have been taken up by the milk while being drawn from the cow, pass off, as the cold water has a tendency to drive it out of the milk. If the aerator is done in a place where the air is pure, the milk will be in almost the same identical condition it is as it leaves the udder of the cow, only it will be cold instead of warm. It is necessary to use water that is at least 50 to 55 degrees Fahrenheit, and the cooler should be such that it will reduce the milk within a degree or two of the water temperature, as there are different makes of coolers and all won't do it by just running the milk over it once; but there are some that will. As long as the milk remains below 60 degrees, the germs that destroy or sour the milk can't work or multiply; but above 70 degrees they increase very fast, and milk is often several points spoiled before it reaches the creamery and can't be detected by the smell or taste, and it is taken in as sweet milk when it is not, and thus the keeping qualities of the butter, cheese, cream or whatever product is turned out by the factory, is injured.—J. S. Rayl, Marion County, Ohio.

Does Silage Cause Abortion?

From the Farmers' Review: I don't agree with Mr. D. W. Howie on the subject of abortion. I don't think there is any more danger of abortion with cows fed on ensilage made of corn fodder than would be were the cows eating dry corn fodder.—Geo. H. Gurley, De Kalb County, Ill.

From Farmers' Review: In answering the question: "Does feeding ensilage cause abortion in cows?" from my experience and observation I should certainly say it does not. The dairy herd at the University of Illinois has been fed ensilage for the past ten years with no bad results. I consider a reasonable amount, 30 to 40 pounds, of good ensilage one of the best feeds for dairy cows and know of no better feed to keep cows in good healthy condition. Many of our best dairymen feed as much as 40 pounds of ensilage for seven months in the year and also use it when pastures are short during summer with entire satisfaction. To obtain uniformly good results the corn must be cut at the right stage, just when commencing to glaze, and it must be put into a good tight silo in the proper manner. If these things are done but a very small amount will spoil. If sound ensilage is fed in the proper amount and had results follow I should look for their cause in something besides ensilage.—W. J. Fraser, Professor of Dairy Husbandry, University of Illinois.

June Brings Out Summer Modes

JUNE always brings out an astonishing new array of gowns, and as I watched the parade on Fifth avenue the other afternoon I could not help but notice the number of distinctly Parisian models worn, a fact which bespeaks the passing of the patriotic sentiment which we women were wont to show during and just after the war with Spain. But this year, more than for a number of years, Paris is again the vogue, and many of the handsomest models are Parisian productions.

On the avenue light cloth gowns and spotted foulards were much in evidence, and red had a fair share of popularity. Thus a charming frock of red foulard, spotted with white, was made with a skirt gauged over the hips and a number of almost plain, graduated flounces.

A chic little gown was in finely tucked gray cloth, with deep cuffs, a pointed yoke piece, and an elongated panel down the front of the skirt of point de Venise, finished with a waistband of black taffeta.

Strappings appear on almost every model. A blue cloth frock was elaborately strapped with wide bands of satin of the same shade, the only reinto fawns. Any color may be worn provided it is mixed with lace. Lace, as I have before told you, forms the chief feature of the season's frocks. I fancy the finer makes will gain the day a little later on, except, of course, for flannels and hopsacks, for which fabrics there are special coarse makes of Trenchon resembling the old Italian designs. Some of these coarse laces look most effective as trimmings on serge and cloth frocks, run through with gold and silver thread.

Both of the models shown in the illustrations are from Paris. One is in periwinkle cloth, with insertion of rose pink panne velvet with fine Venetian point. With it is worn an attractive picture hat. The other is an elaborate affair in light tan cloth.

Some of the picture hats are quite flat, while others boast of the high, jam-pot crown. There is a good deal to be said in favor of both, but I think over here we prefer the flatter kind. Very simple indeed are the trimmings of these hats. Long ostrich plumes are never out of fashion, neither are wreaths of superb flowers; and just now ribbon rosettes and cockades, mostly knife-killed, are quite a feature. These, by the way, are easier to make in a stiff ribbon; moire is very effective and so is striped Pompadour ribbon.

JOHN MITCHELL NEEDS REST

Sickness Keeps Miners' Leader From Celebration in His Honor.

Terre Haute, Ind., June 22.—John Mitchell, president of the mine workers, is in need of absolute rest to prevent physical collapse. For that reason he sent word to the state officials of the miners' organization here that he could not attend the holiday celebration arranged in his honor at Winslow.

Mr. Mitchell has been working hard for a long time. He has several engagements in the West next week and hopes to recover his strength in time to keep them. National Secretary Wilson represented him at Winslow.

Deluge of Mud.

Rome, June 22.—A rain of mud recently fell in Giardini, Italy, which dried up the plants and spoiled the crops. Geologists explain this curious downpour as being of volcanic source, brought from Africa by the winds. Other savants say it is a meteoric phenomenon and the mud comes from other planets.

Goats to Clear Land.

Delavan, Wis., June 22.—A Stevens of Chicago has received 270 Angora goats, which he has placed on his land bordering Delavan lake. They are brought here to graze, using this method to clear the land of underbrush.

IN ASIATIC RUSSIA

RESULTS OF RECENT EARTHQUAKE AT ANDIZHAN.

Disaster Leaves Flourishing Turkistan Town a Heap of Ruins—Succession of Shocks Completes the Work of Destruction.

(Special Correspondence.)

The recent news from the flourishing city of Andizhan, province of Ferghana, Turkistan, Asiatic Russia, telling of an earthquake there, causing serious loss of life, is now shown to have completely underestimated the character of the catastrophe which it attempted to describe. Instead of the city being merely damaged by the earthquake, Andizhan was converted by it into "a heap of ruins," and is now completely wiped off the map of Turkistan. Instead of a few dozen people having been killed, the known fatalities now reach 5,000, including some 800 who perished in the native quarter of the city.

The significance of such a disaster as that which has thus overtaken a city known for its size and commercial significance as "the Lombardy of Central Asia," cannot be appreciated, save in the light of facts showing something of what Andizhan meant, not only for Turkistan, but also for Central Asia, and therefore for the Russian empire.

The province is 28,222 square miles in area, four-fifths of it being mountainous territory. Its inhabitants number 676,000, 528,800 of whom are settled agriculturists, while the remainder follow the life of pastoral nomads, and include such strange and diverse races as Aryan Tazhiks, Sarts, Turkish Uzbeks, Kirghiz, and Karakirghiz, the latter being nomadic in their habits.

When Skobelev was carrying on his campaign against the Turkomans and other nomads, he began the construction of a provisional line of railroad, and this, since 1895, has been carried by successive stages into the very heart of Central Asia. With a Western terminus at Krasnovodsk, it now passes through Samarkand as far as Tashkent, and has branch lines extending to Andizhan, also southward, by the Murghab river branch, from Merv, the scene of Donovon's exploits, to Kushk, which is within five miles of the frontier of Afghanistan.

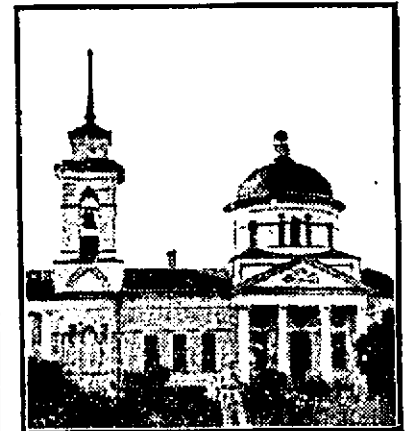

So much for the situation at Andizhan, as one of the cities which Russia acquired as a result of her recent expansion in Central Asia. A word now about Andizhan itself.

The city had a total population of about 30,000 people, many of whom were engaged in the trade of one of the most important caravan routes in Central Asia. Though situated at a height of 1,170 feet above ocean level, Andizhan enjoys a fairly warm climate and is renowned for its flowers, fruits and grapes. Its population was also engaged in the production of cotton, for the preparation and manufacture of which the city had several factories.

Architecturally, Andizhan could not be called beautiful. As in many other towns and cities of Central Asia, its public trade was represented in Andizhan by a single street, on which most of the bazars and stores, the hotels and apothecary shops, were to be found. This was known as the Nikolaevsky Prospekt. It was a rather wide thoroughfare, planted on both sides with elms, whose blossoming gave the "prospect" a fine appearance in summer. The houses of Andizhan consisted mainly of small, one-story buildings. These, with spaces between, lined the prospect on each side.

At one end of the Nikolaevsky there was a railway depot, erected in 1896; at the other stood a church, dedicated to and bearing the name of St. Sergius Radonezhsky. This was the only orthodox place of worship in Andizhan, and formed with its surrounding gardens one of the prettiest architectural features of the city.

Beyond the church there were narrow, crooked streets, which reveal the building methods of the native Sarts. The fortress of Andizhan stood on rising ground, and a mile or two further on, along the postroad to Osha.

Church of St. Sergius Radonezhsky, there is a Russian cemetery surrounded by a high wall, within which, among other buildings, a large prayer house is visible.

As for the inhabitants, they were mostly—leaving the official and trading Russian population out of account—of the stock of Persian-Uzbek Sarts, speaking the Turkish language and worshipping in a mosque.

The great earthquake at Andizhan, which suggests St. Pierre, and promises to far exceed the devastation wrought last year at Shemakha, also in Central Asia, broke upon the inhabitants late in the evening of Dec. 13 last. The first shock was felt at 8:45 o'clock, local time. This does not seem to have been severe, and though it terrified the inhabitants, all of them returned to their houses, supposing the disturbances to be at an end.

The really fatal and destructive shock came half an hour later, and then it was too late for the imprisoned householders to escape. Such was the violence of the earth's movement that the buildings in every part of the city began to collapse like houses of cards, the destruction overwhelming the one-story buildings as completely as it did the public structures, hotels, factories and stores.

No warning was now needed, and wherever the inhabitants could make their way into the streets the buildings were forsaken. But great numbers failed in the attempt, and the second shock literally buried them in the ruins of the city.

Down came government buildings, hotels, factories, stores, dwelling houses and almost before the shrieks of the dying could announce the catastrophe, Andizhan was a heap of ruins.

The second shock destroyed it; yet in a few minutes other disturbances followed, and then, succeeding each other "with merciless regularity," came shock after shock, completing the devastation already wrought, adding to the confusion, the terror and the loss of life and making escape from the smoking and dust-obscured debris, even by those who still lived, an impossibility.

Some idea of the violence and amplitude of the shocks may be formed from the fact that, for an area of nearly 100 miles around Andizhan, the soil was thrown up and otherwise disturbed, and that many suburban villages and settlements suffered from a ruin and loss of life just as complete. On a smaller scale, at those which visited Andizhan.

But no imagination can adequately realize the scenes of that fearful half-hour which followed the second shock, during which from 4,000 to 10,000 human beings found their graves beneath the debris of falling walls and collapsing roofs—cut off from every hope of rescue, and where not killed immediately, doomed to await death in its most terrible form. All night long the shocks continued, nor had the seismic wave that beat upon Andizhan exhausted itself even on the following day.

Thus far it has not been possible to estimate the cost of the earthquake in destruction of property. All the government buildings were converted into a mass of debris. With the exception of the Pozharsky factory, all the manufacturing establishments were ruined. The aspect of the stores and dwelling houses, which were razed with the ground, reminds one of the appearance of a city after it has been subjected to long-continued bombardment.

PLAN TO SHIP FROZEN FISH.

Denizens of the Deep to Reach Customers Alive.

A Tacoma company proposes to freeze live salmon in blocks of ice, ship them to New York and then bring them to life. It is said that experiments have demonstrated that freezing of live fish in this manner is possible, providing the temperature of the fish is not far below the freezing point and certain conditions are complied with in resuscitation.

Further tests are to be made this summer on the Alaskan coast, and, if successful, shipments of fish in this manner to eastern cities will be begun next fall.

An expert who has been conducting experiments in Oregon says that salmon can be frozen solid, and thawed back to life if not exposed to the sun or allowed to get more than 14 degrees below the freezing point.

It is well known that Alaska rivers and lakes, which freeze solid from top to bottom in the winter, are filled with fish every summer. The fish they contain are frozen and remain in the ice through the long winter. This fact forms the basis of the experiments now being conducted.

Will Be World's Granary.

Several flour mills are now in operation at Harbin, Manchuria, where a fine quality of wheat can be purchased at 30 cents per bushel. It is one of the best wheat-growing sections of the world. United States newspapers state that the northwestern part of our country can produce wheat and flour and ship them 1,500 miles to Siberia at a profit. If excellent native wheat can be delivered in large quantities at Harbin for 30 cents per bushel with ancient methods and machinery, what can be done when improved machinery is introduced?

Marvelous Surgical Operation.

A curious surgical operation is reported from Dresden, where Dr. Hanel, who was attending a girl 8 years of age who had just lost the forefinger of her right hand, amputated the second toe of his patient's right foot and sewed it on to the stump of the missing finger. The two parts were then incased in plaster, and after three weeks it was found that the toe had become firmly attached, forming a good substitute for the finger.

BEWARE OF THE
AWFUL TOY PISTOL

Physicians in Chicago Issue a Warning That Can Be Repeated Here.

As the time of the glorious Fourth approaches the small boy decides that he must celebrate the day in fitting manner. He even thinks he must begin a week or two ahead so as to be primed up to the limit on the day proper. His chief ambition is to own or borrow a toy pistol. Each year victims of the toy pistol outnumber the general loss of life or maimed hands and mangled eyes. The scourge of the toy pistol is already here and every paper has one or more accidents to record to the small boy with an over exuberance of American spirit.

Timely Warning
Chicago physicians have issued a timely warning to all parents to keep toy revolvers out of the hands of their children in their independence day celebrations, and have also added some suggestions for the treatment of wounds received from blank cartridges and "caps" pistols.

Warning Is Repeated
The bulletin of the Chicago health department says:
"Although the suggestions as to the treatment of fourth of July wounds in last week's bulletin have been widely copied and indorsed by the medical and lay press, it seems necessary to repeat them in view of the following editorial comment in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association:

"We should not forget that most of these deaths are preventable if the blank cartridge wounds are properly treated as soon as they are received. It is a sad fact that the greatest number of cases of fourth of July tetanus occurs in boys who have gone to some physician, not frequently in a dispensary, who, instead of giving the wound the thorough treatment that it deserves, has superficially cleaned and dressed it. The responsibility here lies with the physician who first sees the wound. A thorough surgical treatment of black cartridge wounds, supplemented by prophylactic, would save many lives each year."
"Keep all fourth of July wounds open until thorough surgical treatment has been secured. Do not close them up and so exclude the air. When the air is excluded the lockjaw germ begins its deadly activity."

His Feelings.

The big six footer had wisely refrained from going to tea, but his society friend had at last induced him to attend one of these functions. On their way home the society friend talked enthusiastically of the event and asked, "Didn't you enjoy it, after all, old man?"

"Enjoy it?" said the other. "Do you know, when I found my big self in a corner, surrounded by seven or eight women, with a teacup like a thimble in one of my huge paws and a wafer the size of a quarter in the other, I felt like a sperm whale trying to crochet."

Education.

Papa was helping Herbert with his grammar lesson.
"Here is a sentence the teacher gave us," said Herbert. "The police raided the speak easy." We have to parse "speak easy."

"All right," said papa. "Speak easy is a noun, common, feminine gender." And then mamma called the class to order.

But it seemed perfectly easy for her to speak.—Chicago Tribune.

Old Enough.

The Ruling Passion
Still Stuck to Him

Nobody knew how it happened. Just as few people cared, perhaps, but the tramp, stealing a ride somewhere about the train, had slipped under the wheels and he was tossed to one side of the track, a broken and bleeding semblance of a man. The conductor, not knowing it was a tramp, stopped the train and went back to investigate. The poor fellow was at his last gasp. Grimy and dirty always, the accident had not greatly changed his normal appearance. Among the curious passengers who came out of the cars to see was a clergyman, and he bent down and spoke kindly to the friendless tramp. It was plain to him that the wanderer would soon be at rest.

"My poor fellow," he said, taking the dirty hand in his, which was white and soft, "Is there anything you wish to say? You are about to go down into the dark river."

The tramp turned uneasily and opened his eyes.

"What's that, pardner?" he gasped.

"You are about to go down into the dark river that lies between"—the clergyman began, and the tramp raised his uninjured hand in protest.

"Don't say that, pardner," he begged.

"Don't say that. I can't stand it."

"It must be, poor fellow," the clergyman said very kindly.

"But I can't stand it," insisted the tramp. "I ain't had a bath in twenty years, and it gives me the shivers to think about it. Say, pardner, ain't there a bridge or a ferry b'—"

There was a catching of the breath, a clack in the throat and the tramp lay still in the dirt that was so dear to him.—William J. Lampton in New York Herald.

A Sentiment Squelcher.

"Hadin' you better let me hold your hand?" asked the sentimental youth as he walked homeward from the social club with the prosaic damsel.

"Why?" asked the girl, who was one of the kind of people that always want a rule and a reason for everything.

"It might grow cold," suggested the youth.

"Well, if you're in the business of keeping people warm I don't mind telling you that my nose feels like an icicle right now."

Thoroughly squelched, the young man dropped the subject.

However, some years later he rejoiced that he did not get to hold her hand, for her husband informed him, confidentially, that nobody could hold her tongue.—Indianapolis Sun.

What's the Odds?

The Mistress—Why, Nora! How dare you wear a hat just like mine?

The Maid—Oh, I ain't pertickler. I'll wear any old thing.—San Francisco Examiner.

Her Definition.

Little Edith went to the kindergarten. One day the teacher gave her a list of words, telling the little miss to find out their meaning and then write a sentence containing each word. The first word on the list was "niche," and little Miss Bright Eyes discovered that it means a recess, so she very carefully and precisely wrote on her slate:

"The children ate their lunch at niche."

And the teacher wondered at the flexibility of the English language.—Philadelphia Ledger.

In After Years.

Mrs. Whoopem—There was a time when I was actually proud of the powerful voice you put into your college yell, but now I wish it had been only a whisper.

Whoopem—Why do you say that, my dear?

Mrs. Whoopem—Because the baby has inherited the aforesaid yell; that's why.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

In Reserve.

"I trust," says the charity visitor, "that you have something which you may look forward to enjoying on the proverbial rainy day."

"Well," hesitates the object of her solicitude, "I have the rheumatism."—Chicago Tribune.

Bella's Cleverness.

"Look at Bella. See how awkwardly she holds up her skirt."

"Trust Bella. There's always method in her awkwardness. Look at the pretty shoes she's wearing!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Income Paradox.

Beryl—Do the Smythes live within their income?

Sibyl—They don't live within it, yet they couldn't live without it.—Baltimore Herald.

A Soft "Seat" For Him.

Bob—Archie has just bought a seat on the Stock Exchange.

Edith—The dear boy! I shall make him two sofa pillows for it at once.—Puck.

Where Ignorance Is Bliss.

Though "live and learn" may doubtless be a motto to impress,

I think that Malak carries it a trifle to excess.

For she has learned a hundred times, from quite as many men,

The way to drive and golf and swim, then learns it all again.

—McLandburgh Wilson in New York Times.

SUNDAY QUIET
AT POUGHKEEPSIE

University Crew Men Spent the Day Socially, in Visiting Other Crews.

Telegraphic reports from Poughkeepsie tell of work done by the oarsmen. The report says it was a quiet Sunday with all the crews. None of the college oarsmen being on the river, and most of the men going to church in the morning. The past few days had been hard ones for all the crews, and the rest came as a hulk before the storm.

The Wisconsin oarsmen visited Cornell in the afternoon and compared notes on the two great rival eight. It seems that Cornell has gone over the course some thirty times at Ithaca, while the Wisconsin men have had seven such trials. Both of the crews have been rowing a slower stroke than last year. Cornell never rowing more than thirty at a time this year. This is in great contrast with Pennsylvania and Columbia, who are rowing thirty four and thirty-five.

The cool weather continues, and Coach O'Dea sent Mather and Bartlett out in the morning for a long walk loaded down with sweaters. As the men were in the rain all of the time they lost little in weight, merely keeping the weight from increasing over Sunday. The other men are in the best of condition, and after Tuesday nothing but light work will be given all three crews.

In fact, the principal concern of the coaches of the college crews is that their men are all putting on weight. This is due to the continued cool weather and it has necessitated harder work than usual on the part of all the colleges. The coaches are hoping for a radical change of weather. They say they do not care how hot it may be—the hotter the better.

There is little or no betting as yet, but all the speculation favors Cornell, and the public confidence in the ability of Courtney's men to win is shared by the Ithacans themselves. There has never been a more marked air of confidence about a Cornell crew quarter than there is this year, and it is evident from the manner of all from coach to coxswain that they expect victory in the coming contest.

The fastest time now stands to the credit of Pennsylvania, being 19:23, as given out by Coach Ward, and the remarkable improvement which the Quaker crew shows after its ten days' work on the Hudson has given their following new inspiration. Andrew O'Dea will not talk about the Wisconsin crew except to say that they are faster than last year. They are very popular with the people who admire their pluck in coming a long distance.

Georgetown and Syracuse have better teams than last year. Being the last to arrive, they expect to work the hardest during the few days that remain before the race.

Soldier Gave Up Kilt.

At Dundee, Scotland, a soldier of the Black Watch, seeing a woman whose baby was perishing with cold, gave her his kilt. The woman was arrested for being in possession of it, but was subsequently discharged.

Glass Windows in Japan.

In Japan thin, transparent paper is used instead of glass in windows—not that glass is not as plentiful and cheap as in this country, but that the Japanese desire the paper to filter the air they breathe.

Have Faith in Education.

An official report shows that at the end of last year there were in Japan 97 agricultural schools, six fishery schools, twenty-eight technical schools, fifty commercial schools, seven mercantile schools and sixty-two industrial schools.

Cancer Carries Off Many.

According to a report newly laid on the table of the house of commons there were 2,893 deaths from cancer in Ireland in 1901. This represented a mortality rate of 6.5 per 10,000 of the population.

Drains Large Territory.

That the low-lying territory of the Mississippi should at times be overflowed is not surprising if one considers that the "father of waters" draws supplies from twenty-eight states, draining one-third of the area of the United States.

Coal Mines Increase.

It is stated that on Jan. 1, 1903, there were 1,124 bituminous coal mines in operation in Pennsylvania, as compared with 948 on Dec. 31, 1900.

Another
Victory For
The Standard...

Mrs. M. J. Laird, teacher and proprietress of the Standard Dress Cutting Academy school in this city, has received word that at the Kansas State Fair the Standard carried away all honors Following is the report received:

This makes Forty-four Contests in which the Standard Square Inch Tailor System has engaged, and in every one has come out a glorious conqueror. It has for years stood at the head of ever system of garment cutting. In this country, and the two last victories over the New York Tailor System and the French Tailor System, on every point of merit, stamps it beyond all question the greatest System in the world. The judges selected at the last State Fair were the most competent experts that could be obtained, and after carefully examining every detail connected with the merits of each system, unanimously awarded every point in favor of the Standard, as there was no point on which it did not far excel in every respect. There was also another award given on Dressmaking, and while our opponent claimed to be a New York dressmaker and had taught dress making for a number of years, yet when the truth was brought down to solid facts and they were presented before the people it showed that loud talk did not weigh in the balance with truth, honesty and justice, and a young girl of only 17, a scholar at our school, and who had never done any dressmaking until she learned the Standard, won the Blue Ribbon and first premium on every point of dressmaking. Thus it will be seen that our scholars are not only taught the foundation and true art of garment cutting, but when they are completed at one of our schools they are prepared to do the highest class of dressmaking. No scholar is limited any length of time or number of lessons in which to complete this course, unless they desire it, but all are taught every branch of the business until they are perfect. Call at our schools and see for yourself the work that is being done Yours very respectfully,
